31. The Companies (Forms) Rules, 2005, is amended by deleting the words “section 393(3)” and substituting therefor the words “section 393”.

Amendment of the Companies (Forms)
Rules, 2005.
MEMORANDUM OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Companies Act, 2004 (hereinafter referred to as “the Act”), establishes a regime for the incorporation of companies, the regulation of the affairs and winding up of trading companies, the duties and obligation of its principal officers and rights of shareholders and creditors in relation to companies established or operating under the Act.

The Bill seeks to amend the Companies Act to ensure that its provisions—

(a) conform with international obligations in respect of transparency, accountability and good governance, in particular as regards—

(i) the provision of information in relation to beneficial owners which should be made available for the public records;

(ii) requiring foreign companies having their central management in Jamaica to maintain ownership information;

(iii) the provision of information on holders of share warrants and to prohibit the issuance of share warrants; and

(iv) the retention period for records of the company, including information on the legal and beneficial owners of companies; and

(b) accord with accepted international standards for tax transparency and compliance, the detection of financial crimes and for a governance regime conducive to foreign investment.
